DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claim 1- 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mullaney (U.S. Pat. No. 5,917,484).

4. Per claim 1, Mullaney teaches a device comprising: a display unit; a first means for displaying on said display unit a first screen for changing a display language (Fig. 4); and a second means for displaying on said display unit a second screen having an optional item for displaying a language change screen, said optional item being displayed in a predetermined language (Figs. 5-6; optional item: "<Back").

5. Per claim 2, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 1, in which said predetermined language is English (Fig. 5; optional item: "<Back").

6. Per claim 3, Mullaney teaches a device comprising: a display unit; a first means for displaying on said display unit a language change screen for changing a display language (Fig. 4); a second means for displaying on said display unit a plurality of setting screens for setting said device (Figs. 5-8); and a switching means for switching from a setting screen displayed arbitrarily by said second means to the language change screen (Figs. 5-8; switching means: "<Back").

7. Per claim 4, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 3, in which said switching means is provided on each setting screen (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

8. Per claim 5, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 4, in which said switching means includes an indication described by means of a specified language (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

9. Per claim 6, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 4, in which said switching means includes an indication composed of a predetermined symbol (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

10. Per claim 7, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 3, in which said switching means is provided outside of said display unit (Figs. 5-8; "<Back"; a user selects switching means using a mouse, keyboard or the like which are provided outside of said display unit).

11. Per claim 8, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 7, in which said switching means includes an indication described by means of a specified language (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

12. Per claim 9, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 7 in which said switching means includes an indication composed of a predetermined symbol (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

13. Per claim 10, Mullaney teaches a device comprising: a display unit; a first means for displaying on said display unit a first screen for changing a display language (Fig. 4); a second means for displaying on said display unit a second screen having an optional item for displaying a language change screen (Fig. 5; "<Back");

a third means for displaying on said display unit a plurality of setting screens for setting said device (Figs. 5-8); and a switching means for switching from a setting screen displayed arbitrarily by said third means to the second screen (Figs. 5-8; switching means: "<Back").

14. Per claim 11, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 10, in which said switching means includes an indication composed of a predetermined symbol (Figs. 5-8; "<Back").

15. Per claim 12, Mullaney teaches a device according to claim 11, in which said predetermined symbol is a return symbol (Figs. 5-8; "< Back").

16. Per claim 13, Mullaney teaches a display device comprising:

a display means for displaying a first screen for setting a display language and a second screen having an input area for displaying the first screen (Figs. 4-5; "<Back"); and a control means for displaying a description in a predetermined language in said input area regardless of a language currently set up (Fig. 4).

17. Per claim 14, Mullaney teaches a method of display comprising the steps of:

(A) displaying a language change screen for changing a display language(Fig. 4);

(B) selecting one language as a display language from a plurality of languages using the language change screen (Fig. 4); and

(C) displaying a screen in a selected language while displaying in an input area intended for displaying a first screen in a predetermined language regardless of the selected language (Fig. 4).

Conclusion

18. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Kusmierczyk (U.S. Pat. No. 5,828,992) discloses an automated control system with bilingual status display.

Barnes et al (U.S. Pat. No. 6,255,630) disclose a program control and display system for a cooking appliance.

Hetherington et al (U.S. Pat. No. 6,396,515) disclose a method, system and computer program product for dynamic language switching in user interface menus, help text; and dialogs.
